Jimmy Brown Is Arrested

Charged With Attempting To Kill Woman

HOLLYWOOD (AP) — Jimmy Brown, former professional football star turned actor, was arrested Sunday night after sheriff's deputies found a woman on the pavement beneath Brown's second-floor apartment. The victim was identified as Eva Marie Bohnechin, 22. She was reported in good condition at Los Angeles County-University of Southern California Medical Center with minor head injuries and a dislocated shoulder. Brown, 32, a former fullback with the Cleveland Browns who led the National Football League in rushing, was booked on suspicion of assault with intent to commit murder. FREED ON BOND He was taken to the West Hollywood sheriff's substation and was later released on $12,500 bond. His attorney, Jules Covey, said he would make no statement until later today. Deputies Myron Cole and John Teixeira said they were called to Brown's West Hollywood apartment at about 9 p.m. after neighbors complained of a fight.

Teixeira said Brown attacked him when he and Cole tried to take the actor into custody. When the officers subdued Brown and left the apartment building with him, the officers said they found Miss Bohnechin on patio concrete beneath a second-floor balcony.

They said they found patches of hair and bloodstains in the Brown apartment. Miss Bohnechin was first taken to Citizens Emergency Hospital where she was reported in critical condition with a broken neck and fractured skull. Doctors at the County-USC medical center said her injuries were less serious than first believed. Sheriff's deputies said Miss

Push Probe In RFK's Killing

Still Hunting 'Polka-Dot Girl'

LOS ANGELES (AP) — With Sirhan Bishara Sirhan behind bars, top prosecutors are meeting daily in hopes of closing holes in Los Angeles County Superior Court Case No. A233421.

That case contains the murder charge against the 24-year-old Jordanian immigrant accused of slaying Sen. Robert F. Kennedy.

Sirhan is to enter a plea to the charge June 28.

Although Sirhan was arrested at the scene of the fatal shooting early Wednesday, and identified by several witnesses as the New York senator's assailant, the case presents unanswered questions.

Not the least of them is whether there was a conspiracy behind the shooting.

MYSTERY GIRL Police haven't been able to produce the dark-haired "girl in the polka-dot dress." Sandy Serrano, 20, a Youth for Kennedy worker, reported seeing the girl run from the Ambassador Hotel after the shooting and say, "We shot him!"

Three young women, the latest a 19-year-old belly dancer, have claimed to be the girl in the polka-dot dress, all saying Miss Serrano misunderstood their words as they ran from the hotel. But Miss Serrano says none is the girl she saw.

"You've got to be color-blind to think that's the girl," Miss Serrano said of the belly dancer, Kathy Fulmer, who had told police she was wearing a polka-dot scarf and a blonde wig the night of the murder.

Meanwhile, Pasadena police are keeping a 24-hour guard at the home of Sirhan's family, although the family reportedly has not been staying there.

In Chicago, a Jordanian grocer was shot to death Saturday in his store and police speculated his killers, described by the victim's wife as two Negroes, may have been seeking revenge for Kennedy's death.

Abder Rayyan, 55, father of nine, was shot in the head as he bent over a vegetable bin. His assailants left without saying a word.

KEEPING MUM Besides imposing the strictest security precautions ever at Los Angeles County jail here, authorities are trying to limit comment on the case by all persons connected with it and by public officials.

Superior Court Judge Arthur Alarcon issued a 3½-page order outlining restrictions Friday and Dist. Atty. Evelle A. Younger said a similar pronouncement the next day, saying he would not tolerate statements from official sources which could jeopardize his case.

Younger said he will designate several top deputies as trial prosecutors.

Of five other persons wounded during the Kennedy shooting, three have been released from hospitals and the other two are reported in good condition.

In the city of Tayleba in Israel-held Jordan, Bishara Sirhan, father of the one-time race-horse exercise boy accused in the assassination, said Sunday that childhood memories of killings in the Arab-Israeli war of 1948 could have disturbed his son.

Hubert Seen As Shoo In

Survey Shows Most Dem Delegates For Him

By Associated Press

Vice President Hubert H. Humphrey stands to inherit such a large share of the national convention delegates left unattached by the death of Sen. Robert F. Kennedy that his nomination for the presidency seems assured, The New York Times said today.

This, the Washington story said, was the major conclusion of a survey of the effect of the Kennedy assassination on the Democratic party's choice of a nominee conducted by correspondents of the Times over the weekend.

The story also said in part: The state-by-state inquiry indicated that more than 400 delegates who had been pledged or were leaning toward the New York senator or available to his cause are now expected to support Humphrey at the Chicago convention, which starts Aug. 28.

FAR BEHIND Sen. Eugene J. McCarthy of Minnesota, the only remaining contender in the field, has the allegiance of only about 75 delegates who had previously been considered in the Kennedy camp.

The addition of more than 400 delegates to his existing convention strength would give Humphrey more than 1,600 delegates, by a generally conservative count. The majority needed for nomination is 1,312.

Comparable estimates of McCarthy's delegate strength, not including any results from New York, were less than 450. This left about 600 delegates listed as undecided.

On the Republican side, New York Gov. Nelson A. Rockefeller praised Kennedy today in the first public speech by a presidential candidate since the senator's death last Thursday.

Rockefeller, under Secret Service guard, said in prepared remarks at an Allegheny College commencement in Meadville, Pa., that Kennedy was "someone special to young people" who seek new leadership.

Political activity, its fanfare muted by Kennedy's assassination, resumes Tuesday with these developments:

—Interest in the Illinois primary centers on a four-way race for the GOP gubernatorial nomination between Cook County ty chairman Richard B. Ogilvie, Peoria industrialist John Henry Altorfer, former Gov. William G. Stratton and S. Thomas Sutton of Elmhurst. Democrats elect 48 of their 118 convention delegates and Republicans 48 of their 58 delegates.

—In Texas state conventions, Gov. John Connally—considered a Humphrey backer—is expected to take command of the 104-member Democratic delegation and Sen. John G. Tower is expected to control 56 GOP delegates.

Car Rams Tree, Passenger Killed

Berrien county had its fifth traffic fatality within 10 days at 1:15 a.m. Sunday when a passenger was killed in a one-car accident.

Dead on arrival at Berrien General hospital was Lucy Carter, route 1, care of Wes Prillwitz Farm, Eau Claire. The driver of the car was admitted and is listed in good condition at Berrien General hospital.

The driver, Andrew Brown, 68, route 1, Eau Claire, was going north on M-140 when he failed to make the curve near Maple Grove road in Berrien township, Berrien sheriff's deputies said.

Brown told deputies his brakes failed, and his car hit a tree. The car was totally damaged, police said.

Deputies said they would ask Prosecutor John Hammond for authorization to charge Brown with negligent homicide.

Mrs. Carter is Berrien county's twenty-third traffic fatality in 1968. On May 31 and June 1, two separate accidents claimed four lives on I-94. There were 23 traffic deaths at this time last year, too.

Mrs. Carter, 66, was born Sept. 23, 1901, in Baton Rouge, La. She had resided in this area for eight years. Surviving are two sons, Joseph and Willie, both of Hernando, Mo.; and a daughter Mrs. Eula Mae Armstrong of Sikeston, Mo. The body will be taken to the Dotson funeral home in Sikeston Tuesday. Funeral services will be held Sunday. Burial will be in the Sunset Memory cemetery. The Robbins funeral home, Benton Harbor, is in charge of local arrangements. Frigidaire Stove - gd. cond. James Ray Arraigned In London

Story Of Long Chase Emerging

LONDON (AP) — James Earl Ray made a two-minute appearance in Bow Street Court today and indicated he would fight the U.S. government's attempt to seek his extradition in connection with the charge that he killed Dr. Martin Luther King Jr.

London's chief magistrate ordered Ray held without bail for another court appearance on June 18.

There was no mention during the brief preliminary hearing of extradition. But Ray asked the court to appoint an attorney for him, and this was taken as an indication that he would fight being returned to America.

American legal officials said they were going ahead with the extradition process and hoped to return Ray to the United States "very soon."

ON THE RUN The 40-year-old escaped convict, who had been on the run since the Negro civil rights leader was killed April 4 in Memphis, Tenn., was arraigned under the alias of Ramon George Sneyd and was charged with carrying a false passport and a loaded revolver without a license.

A heavy police escort brought Ray secretly to the court three hours before the preliminary hearing was to begin. A crowd of about 300 laid siege to the courtroom later, and everyone entering it was searched for weapons.

Ray had been under heavy guard since his arrest Saturday. Wearing a dark blue suit with dark brown checks and a blue shirt, Ray stood quietly with his hands clasped behind him as Chief Magistrate Frank Milton told him that under British criminal procedure press coverage of the details of the hearing would be limited unless he asked that the restriction be lifted.

Asked if he wanted the restriction lifted, he replied: "No sir."

Ray's dark hair was flecked with gray at the temples, and his face was tanned.

A government prosecutor asked that Ray be held in custody, and the judge granted Ray's application request that the court appoint a lawyer for him. Then he was taken away by a large force of plainclothesmen and uniformed police.

It was believed that he was taken to Brixton Prison considered one of London's most secure jails.

American legal officials in London said the "process toward extradition is already in motion and we hope to get him back to the United States very soon."

SPEAKS CLEARLY Ray came into the court through a side door, flanked by two policemen. He looked calm and spoke in a firm voice.

The atmosphere in the courtroom was tense.

Two benches were occupied by about 35 reporters. Another 20 were outside the courtroom, and about 50 persons jammed the enclosure set aside for the public.

Plainclothesmen and uniformed police lined the courtroom, and five of them stood at the back of the dock, facing the press and public.

Ray is wanted on a Tennessee charge of murder, a federal charge of conspiring to deny King his civil rights and a Missouri charge that he escaped from prison there on April 23, 1967.

U.S. Asst. Atty. Gen. Fred M. Vinson Jr. flew to London and

Studying The Presidency

The second Kennedy assassination shoved not only the conventional front page news into the back of the nation's newspapers last week but also obscured an overlooked announcement by President Johnson two weeks ago.

In something of an aside to the reporters, LBJ said he would appoint a commission to examine into the office of the Presidency.

His thought, he added, was to have the commission suggest how the office might be improved and made "stronger." By stronger, apparently he meant more effective, not more powerful.

The Constitutional Convention of 1787 established a new political philosophy which in theory divides the powers of the federal government into three equal parts, each to serve as a check and a balance upon the other.

It enumerated the authority of the legislative branch, Congress, in some detail, and laid down the same specialization for the judiciary. The greatest power of the judiciary, the authority to invalidate legislation and acts of the executive branch, is not spelled out whatever. John Marshall, the first Chief Justice of the Supreme Court, established that prerogative in his opinions on cases reaching his bench.

The Convention deliberately endowed the Presidency with powers that are mostly implied. Only four powers or duties are spelled out specifically (appointment to various offices, treaty making, the state of the union message, and being commander in chief of the armed forces).

All the remaining vestige in the office is concealed in the phrase, "the Executive power shall be invested in a President."

The Convention had a reason for this vagueness.

George Washington was everyone's choice for the first President even before the recently freed colonies had voted themselves into a national government and the office had assumed its existence.

The Founding Fathers had a faith that Washington would chart the dimensions of the office with the same inherent managerial capability he brought to the Revolutionary War.

He did not let down this faith. He proceeded to structure the office with firmness and foresight.

For a century after Washington delivered his Farewell Address, the Congress tended to occupy a stronger position in the governmental scheme than the President. The most notable exception was the Lincoln Administration during the Civil War and even in that period of trial and error, Lincoln had to compromise frequently his better judgment with a House Committee on The Conduct of the War.

This dominance shifted away from Congress and toward the White House around the turn of our own century.

Economic and social complexities, which did not intrude themselves when the Constitution was written, started to appear; and Congress found it increasingly difficult to draft, much less supervise, all of the legal intricacies of a changing order.

As a consequence, Congress began to write legislation in broad terms and leave it to the President to enforce its commandments through administrative directives. Rules and regulations from the President or one of his cabinet officers became as important as the basic verbiage from the Constitutionally appointed lawmakers.

Although many people assume (or blame) FDR for shifting this balance of power, the process runs back at least to his cousin, Teddy.

The consequence of this agglomerative process has been to judge a President by the skill with which he handles his office routine.

LBJ, for example, is constantly faulted for his predilection to hold his options, to play his cards close to his vest.

Eisenhower, particularly in domestic affairs, followed an opposite course.

Neither system works 100% to the public good.

The store closes up when LBJ leaves town. Under Ike it was a question at times as to just who might be running the shop.

The ideal solution for cutting the Gordian knot, which is what the Presidency has become in modern times, is for the President to hold his options on the big things and try to find capable subordinates who can deliver quick, accurate answers to the lesser questions.

The necessity for applying this business technique to the White House has long been apparent.

The stumbling block is that the White House is in a business in which most people feel they are as competent to operate as the next fellow. This means that votes are a President's profit or loss rather than the black ink or the red ink inuring to a corporation's president.

The temptation, consequently, is great for most Presidents to attempt to do everything by themselves and to be everywhere at once; and to delegate only those chores, which if they can be pigeonholed, may not develop into embarrassments.

Substantially, what the office devolves into still depends almost entirely on the personality of its occupant.

Aid Assailed Anew

Vietnam has become a paradox in more than the military sense. It also is becoming known as one of the most corrupt recipients of U.S. foreign aid.

Two independent studies made recently on foreign aid to Vietnam have reached the same conclusion: hundreds of millions of dollars worth of aid material simply disappears before it reaches its target.

In addition, poor administration of the aid program by the Agency for International Development has contributed to the U. S. balance of payments deficit.

One of the studies was conducted by Sen. Ribicoff of Connecticut, who reported to the Government Operations Committee on a fact finding mission he made to Vietnam last winter. He was "dismayed," he said, to find AID's Saigon mission "one of the most overblown bureaucracies I have ever seen."

Among the items uncovered by the senator was a report made by the U. S. Army "showing that some 500,000 tons of rice shipped into Vietnam cannot be accounted for." This amounts to nearly $100 million in rice. Cooked, it would cover the face of the earth.

Ribicoff also blasted South Vietnam's import system, which he said entails buying mostly from countries other than the U. S., and using U. S. dollars spent in Vietnam by American servicemen. The effect is to worsen the U. S. balance of payments by spreading dollars among countries which turn them in for gold.

In fiscal 1967, South Vietnam's imports amounted to $306 million. Only $17 million came from the U. S.

At the same time Sen. Ribicoff was revealing his charges to the committee, the General Accounting Office was complaining that AID has no effective means of keeping track of receipt, storage or movement to merchants of hundreds of millions of dollars worth of AID-financed goods.

All in all, it has not been a good month for AID. The American taxpayer, whose money goes down the drain in this waste, faces the unhappy prospect of additional federal taxes in the near future.

It is a good time to tighten the pursestrings at least to the extent of preventing wholesale fraud and corruption.

If AID cannot do the job, Congress and the GAO certainly can.

THE FAMILY LAWYER

Alimony Road To Jail

Sentenced to prison for failing to pay alimony, an indignant husband demanded his release on constitutional grounds.

"The Constitution forbids imprisonment for debt," he argued. "I can't be put in jail just for not paying the money I owe my ex-wife."

Nevertheless, the court decided to let the sentence stand. The judge said the husband was being punished not for failing to pay a sum of money but for contempt of court.

Although this distinction may not have satisfied the husband, it carries enough weight to be recognized in most jurisdictions. What a man owes his divorced wife is not a debt—such as you might owe the corner druggist—but a personal obligation growing out of the marriage relationship itself.

It is this obligation that a divorce court is enforcing when it orders a husband to pay alimony. And when he refuses to pay, he is defying a court order—and is therefore in contempt.

But to justify sending him to jail, there must indeed be defiance, not just an inability to pay.

Thus, a husband cannot be imprisoned, if, even though willing, he simply cannot make the payments. Say a man falls behind in alimony because he loses his job and can't find another. In such circumstances, a court is not likely to send him to jail—even if his ex-wife wants to put him there.

What if the husband, although broke himself, has relatives who could come to his financial rescue if he so desired?

"Throw him in jail," urged one divorcee in court, "and his relatives will show up in a hurry with the money."

But the court refused to apply this roundabout pressure. The judge pointed out that in the eyes of the law, only the husband—not his relatives—had any duty to support her.

Furthermore, for a very practical reason, imprisonment is no longer used very often in alimony cases. The big drawback is that while the husband is behind bars, he is not earning any money.

True, his incarceration might give the ex-wife some sort of satisfaction. But it will not help her to buy groceries or pay the rent.

DR. COLEMAN

.. And Speaking Of Your Health

Why does a child's voice change to a deeper one at puberty?

There are a number of reasons why the voice of a boy, or a girl, changes in pitch and in timbre about the time of puberty. The changes are less marked in a girl, but certainly they, too, develop other voice characteristics.

The presence of added ovarian and testicular hormones play a very definite role in these changes. In the Dr. Coleman male, there is an additional reason for changes and that is the size of the larynx, or voice box. This grows considerably through puberty and into adult life.

It is well known that a eunuch maintains a child-like, high-pitched and almost falsetto voice. In fact, such a voice is often referred to as a castrata and lasts throughout their life time. Occasionally, without any explanation, the voice in the adult maintains a high pitch and he is known as a descant singer.

The gradual change from the high pitch to the masculine voice sometimes fails to occur, because of speech patterns that were established in childhood. This can, of course, become very embarrassing in a young boy whose friends unkindly comment on it.

With the help of a speech therapist, it is very often possible to lower the pitch of the voice with a few special exercises. Certainly the change will eventually occur, but if an adolescent can be spared that embarrassment it is very worthwhile, from an emotional point of view, to seek and find proper speech therapy.

Is there any truth that a Vitamin B-12 injection gives a person more energy? Why can't it be taken just as well by mouth?

Vitamin B-12 and B complex have been injected into the buttocks, the arms, and the veins to support a person's confused idea that this gives him added energy to carry on a day's activity. Personally, I believe that this is a highly overrated and pointless benefit, over taking the vitamin by mouth, when needed. Even this is usually unnecessary in people who eat a sensible, normal, well-balanced, nutritious diet. Almost always such a diet contains far more vitamins than are necessary for the minimal daily requirement for health.

There are some vitamin deficiencies which need added vitamin B, as a supplement to diet. The only way that this can be determined is by complex studies of the blood to measure the amount of that vitamin deficiency.

The body has its own excellent fuse that usually prevents the accumulation of excesses of all vitamins in the tissues. The body accepts what it needs and then excretes the unused vitamins in the urine.

There is a false sense of well-being after a "shot," which may last for a short while because of its psychological effect and because of an occasional feeling of warmth and vitality. Too often patients insist that these injections are the only way to regain their strength and frequently put pressure on the doctor to give them an injection, when taking it by mouth would be just as effective.

One starry summer night, a dashing young blade hoisted his date into one of those handsome cabs opposite New York's Plaza Hotel and ordered the hackie, "Drive us to Staten Island."

"Nothing doing," demurred the hackie. "That means a long ferry ride over and back—and my horse gets seasick."

It was a raw, windy November day, but a foursome of rugged senior citizens had no intention of letting that hold up their match. Off the first tee they drove, stopping after each shot for a nip at their flask. By the eighteenth green they were so fried they could scarcely stand. They were also all even. The match depended on whether or not one of the inebriated antiquies could sink a long, uphill putt. Just then, a great big dog dashed out of the caddy house, burst straight between the old gentlemen's legs, and disappeared into the bushes beyond the green. Ignoring the interruption, our hero smacked his putt straight into the cup.

"What a man," enthused his

The old man gasped, "Great heavens! You don't mean to say that was a real dog!"

Verdicts Due In 15 Districts

Light Turnout Reported At Twin City Polls

Voters in at least 15 school districts in southwestern Michigan were going to the polls today to act on a critical question of financing their school programs, voting either on added operating millage or on building bond issues.

As is the case in more than 200 districts across the state, the outcome of the votes could have some bearing on whether some schools will open on time this fall.

Administrators have said they need more money to operate the schools and to meet teacher bargaining organizations' demands for higher pay and increased benefits. Severe cutbacks in services are threatened in a number of the districts if voters fail to approve additional levies.

Polls are to remain open until 8 o'clock this evening in all districts.

Today is the date of annual school elections, and virtually all districts, whether or not they have millage issues, are electing members to their school boards.

LIGHT TURNOUT

The turnout of voters was reported generally light in a sampling of precinct polling places in both the Benton Harbor and St. Joseph districts this morning. Showers during the early hours after the polls opened at 7 a.m. were blamed in part for the slower arrival of voters.

All registered electors, whether or not they are property owners, are eligible to vote on operating millage issues in all districts.

Voters in the Benton Harbor district are acting on a five-mill operating levy, plus the selection of two board members from a field of nine candidates and the transfer of an old Hull school building fund to the Benton Harbor building and site fund.

St. Joseph school electors were deciding on two millage increase proposals. One, for 13.95 mills to continue the school program at its current level, and another for 1.05 mills to improve the program. Two members of the school board are to be elected from among four candidates.

Lakeshore district voters were being called on to decide on six mills for extra operating revenue and on one additional mill for a building and site fund.

Three other districts in Berrien county are acting on operating millage proposals. River Valley district is voting on 14 mills, Galien on four mills and New Buffalo on two.

Van Buren districts acting on millage questions for operating, and the mills involved, are: Hartford, four mills plus one for building and site fund; Lawrence, three mills; Lawton, 12 mills; Covert, eight mills; Bloomingdale, nine mills; Gobles, eight mills. Additionally, Decatur district is deciding on a $540,000 building bond issue.

Dowagiac district in Cass county is acting on 1.4 mills for a building and site fund.

Fluoride Treatment Program Set In BH

The summer topical fluoride program in the Benton Harbor school district will start Wednesday at Fairplain junior high school, according to Mrs. Grieger, RN, chairman of the district's topical fluoride committee.

Mrs. Grieger said 835 children are enrolled in the program which consists of four visits to the clinic. The teeth are cleaned and a solution of fluoride is applied directly to the teeth on the first visit. The fluoride application is then repeated at the three succeeding visits.

This procedure has been shown to reduce tooth decay by about 40 per cent, she said. Topical fluoride is not considered a substitute for regular care of teeth by a dentist or at home.

Miss Wendy Pedden, of Grand Rapids, a senior dental hygiene student at Ferris State, will clean the children's teeth and apply the fluoride solution. She will be supervised by dentists.

If parents have questions regarding appointments, they can call the fluoride center, 927-3131, starting Wednesday between 9 a.m. and 3:30 p.m.

Christ Lutheran Church Underway

Cornerstone Put In Place In Sunday Ceremony

Members of Christ Lutheran parish by prayer and song Sunday laid the cornerstone to their new church—a significant step in their 14-year dream of having their own church.

The Christ Lutheran congregation at present holds services in the gymnasium of its school at 2900 Lakeview avenue in St. Joseph.

That building has been purchased by the Berrien County Intermediate school district through the St. Joseph school district for a special education facility.

The new Christ Lutheran church, located on Cleveland avenue a quarter of a mile south of Glenford, in South St. Joseph, will include a church, five-classroom school and other facilities in a $700,000 building.

Rev. Robert Brege, pastor of Christ Lutheran, blessed the cornerstone while holding a trowel.

Rev. Paul Koehnke, pastor of Trinity Lutheran church, St. Joseph, told the large gathering of parishioners the cornerstone of their church was Christ himself and that all they do in His behalf will be awarded in eternity.

Frederick C. Schultz read off a list of items placed in the copper box sealed in the cornerstone. Schultz said that items in the box included the contents of the cornerstone set May 13, 1956 at 2900 Lakeview avenue and a second Holy Bible, Lutheran hymnals, constitution of the church, list of officers and church roster, a survey report of Christ and Trinity Lutheran churches, the cornerstone-laying program, graduation program, church bulletins, other Lutheran periodicals, copies of this newspaper, a tape recording of the senior choir and a 1968 penny.

On hand for the ceremonies were Dwight Holland, contractor and Brooks Buderus, architect of Park Ridge, Ill.

The cornerstone was cemented into place by Leo Cummins of Holland Construction Co.

The senior choir was under the direction of Earl Totzke.

Several hundred parishioners were on hand for the ceremony.

OVER 5,000 VIEW SAD BUT JOYFUL EVENT

GRAND PRIZE WINNER: Girls of Brownie Troop 63, led by Mrs. Velma Tie, St. Joseph, received the grand prize at Stevensville Memorial Kiddies parade

Sunday. Girls are in dress of different nations, while streamers extend to single globe. Theme is, "children around the world."

Stevensville
Kiddies
Parade HeldEvent Dedicated To Sen. Kennedy;
Service Held

Fun and lively laughter of children rippled through Stevensville Sunday afternoon, but the spirit of mourning also was present.

The occasion was the annual Stevensville Memorial Kiddies parade, which included about 305 children in 70 units, observed by some 5,000 to 6,000 persons.

"Memorial" was incorporated into the title by Lakeshore Jaycees, sponsors of the annual parade. It signifies universal mourning over the death of U.S. Sen. Robert F. Kennedy.

A brief memorial service and a minute of silence preceded the parade, held in intense heat, as the mercury hit the 90's. It was a far cry from the original parade date May 26, when a drenching downpour washed out the event until yesterday.

Presiding at the ceremony were Stevensville President James Small, who traced the life of Sen. Kennedy; the Rev. Arthur Davis, pastor of Stevensville Methodist church; the Rev. David Kruger, pastor of Stevensville's St. Luke's Lutheran church; the Rev. Richard Paetz, pastor of Lakeshore Baptist church; and the Rev. Father John Young, assistant pastor of St. Joseph Catholic church.

Said Father Young: "Kennedy was a man dedicated to public service. The reason for a day of mourning is because of the act of violence that took place, which is a threat to our democracy for which Kennedy served."

Life went on, and youngsters, pulling floats, leading pets, wheeling decorated bicycles and skipping along in clown and pirate garb, dominated the Stevensville scene in what Jaycees term one of the biggest and best attended parades of all.

Heat played the only discordant role, as one unidentified member of the Blossomland Cadets, a young girl, fainted. One of a group of Boy Scouts keeping spectators at distance, also fainted. Both were revived, it was reported.

Judges assessed the floats and awarded the grand prize trophy and a $25 U.S. savings bond to Brownie Troop 63 of south St. Joseph, led by Mrs. Velma Tie. Thirteen girls in attire of different nations pulled the float which included streamers leading to a large paper mache globe in the center of the wagon.

Most unusual float award went to Pat and Tom O'Malley, children of Mr. and Mrs. James O'Malley of Stevensville. They walked in their float, looking like Arabs riding a camel. The camel's body was a shaped cardboard box. Their feet were disguised to resemble those of a camel, while their faces were covered by veils.

Besides these two winners, first, second and third place trophies were awarded in each of five categories — floats,

THE FOUR SEASONS: Among the more than 300 youngsters in the Stevensville Memorial Kiddies parade were four who lived up to their billing, the four seasons. It's baseball season now, but way at the right is a grim looking football player, reminding that the All-Star football game is in August. Joining the sledder is the gal in her midsummer swim suit. Moving away from seasons is clown.

CAMEL FOR TWO: This camel, actually two youngsters disguised as Arabs while also serving as the camel, received the award for the most unusual entry in Stevensville Memorial Kiddies parade. Building
Plans Will Be DiscussedSpecial Meeting
Set At Dowagiac

DOWAGIAC —The Dowagiac Union school board will hold a special meeting tonight at 8 o'clock in the home economics room of Central Junior high school.

The purpose of the meeting will be to review the status of the elementary building program with the representatives of the architects firm of Maurer and Maurer of South Bend.

At the last meeting of the board, the architect was directed to negotiate with the apparent low bidders to bring the cost of three additions into line with the original planning budget at the time the bond issue was passed.

Dr. Kenneth Reinke, superintendent, said that based on conferences with the architect and school administration, "significant progress has been made." He added, "We're going to have to give up some of the things we felt were necessary, but we feel we are going to be able to retain the educational aspects we had to have. We have reviewed the deductible items provided by the architect and now feel confident that we will be able to proceed with the building program as planned."

The building program as originally proposed included a new elementary school in the Wayne township area as well as additions to the Sister Lakes, Patrick Hamilton and McKinley schools.

The board agenda for tonight's meeting calls for a review of the specific recommendations of the architect and administrators. With the board's approval of these recommendations it is hoped construction could begin immediately and be completed by next spring.

Sunday's search concentrated on a heavily wooded area east of Houghton Lake in Roscommon County, between Roscommon and St. Helen.

Man, 70, Will Be Getting Inheritance Of $50,000

By SAM SHULSKY
Q. I will shortly receive an inheritance of about $50,000. I would like to invest it so that my wife will receive at least $200 a month, with the principal to remain undisturbed. I want to avoid real estate which requires management. Naturally, I'm also interested in keeping my tax bill down. We are nearing 70.

A. Income of $2,400 a year from $50,000 requires a yield of only about 4½ percent—which is a modest return by today's standards.

If you want to avoid all taxes on this income, you can get the $2,400 from $50,000 invested in tax-exempt municipals.

You can also consider some good quality utility stocks which pay dividends wholly or partly exempt from income taxes. Your overall yield there could easily be 5 percent.

You could also consider some good quality utility bonds which today are yielding up to around 7 percent. This would produce nearly $290 a month from $50,000. If your tax bracket isn't too high, you might easily come out with more than $200 a month net.

Or there is no reason why you shouldn't consider a portfolio of all three types of security, apportioning money in accordance with your tax bracket.

Q. I am interested in buying new issues, but I've never been able to get any from my broker.

A. Recent new issues have been "so hot" that they're risen in price almost immediately. It's been somewhat like getting $15 or $20 for a $10 bill—which is good work if you can get it.

Every broker can't sell you a new issue, because every broker is not a member of the underwriting or selling syndicate of a new issue. Those brokers who are members of the syndicate will, naturally, apportion the shares they have to sell among their best customers. Translated, this means that if you give your broker a lot of commission business you can try to harangue him into allotting you some shares of a "hot" new issue—if he has any to allot.

Q. Is utility bond interest tax exempt? Is any capital gain in them taxable? Do bonds fluctuate as much as stocks? As risky? I have $35,000 invested in counter stocks on which I received $1,175 dividends in 1967. I also have $15,000 in E. bonds. I would like more income, and less risk on my stocks.

A. Utility bond interest is taxable. So is the capital gain. Non-convertible quality bonds as a rule do not fluctuate as much as common shares. If you hold a bond of a low-quality, risky company you do stand a chance of losing your money, although in any specific company the bond must be considered "safer" than the common shares.

If you're getting only $1,175 from $35,000 in stocks, you're not invested in income-type stocks. Consider some of the higher yield, quality issues on the list I am sending you. If you need more current income how can you continue to hold E bonds?

Wall Street Moves Up Irregularly

NEW YORK (AP)—The stock market moved irregularly higher early Monday despite a tightening of stock-market credit by the Federal Reserve Board.

Trading was heavy, and the ticker tape was late as gains outnumbered losses by about 100 issues on the New York Exchange.

The Dow Jones Industrial Average advanced about 3 points, and the New York Stock Exchange index of some 1,200 stocks also moved higher.

Gains of fractions to a point or so were mingled with losses of the same range.

Up a point or better were Gulf & Western, Goodyear, General Dynamics and IBM.

Down about a point were American Broadcasting and Merck.

Active fractional gainers included Glen Alden, United Air Lines, Hooker Chemical, American Airlines, McDonnell Douglas, Cerro and Narco Scientific.

Among fractional losers were General Motors, U. S. Steel, RCA, American Smelting, Control Data and Polaroid.

"A margin increase never changed a trend," said one analyst.

The "Fed" raised margins—the "down payment" for purchase of stocks—to 80 per cent from 70 per cent on Friday in an expression of concern for the "Excessive" amount of credit which is part of the reason for the current stock market boom.

Many in Wall Street, however, regarded the Fed's action as a slap on the wrist as they had expected a boost to possibly 90 per cent of 100 per cent in margin.

Wall Street sources observed that margin increases had not had any appreciable effect on a rising stock market immediately, and they also noted that the powerful buying by institutions is not much affected by this.

Opening prices included: Goodrich, off ¾ at 67 on 79,600 shares; United Air Lines, up ½ at 43 on 1,500; and American Home Products, up ¾ at 63 on 5,800.

On Friday the Associated Press average of 60 stocks advanced 3.6 to 342.1, a new high for the year.

Prices were irregular on the American Stock Exchange. Fractional gains were made by Nuclear Corp. of America, Federal Resources, Gulf American, Holly Corp. and Great Lakes Chemical. Down slightly were Airlift International, Sterling Precision and General Stores.

Firemen On Run With Minor Calls

Benton Harbor firemen reported no fires this weekend, but they were kept busy pumping water out of a hotel, clearing a house of smoke and turning off a stove that leaked gas.

Firemen were called to the Milner hotel, 250 East Main street, Saturday, when Leon Fowler, manager, reported water in the basement was in danger of extinguishing a gas pilot light. Firemen turned off the flame and pumped the water out of the basement.

Sunday they responded to a call from Bill Davis, 159 Lake street, when grease in a frying pan ignited and filled his apartment with smoke, and causing some damage to the wall and ceiling.

Lulu May Frazier of 721 East Vineyard street called firemen when gas began burning from a broken line in her stove oven.

Benton township firemen were called to the home of Dorothy Jones, 1067 Blossom lane, to turn off a defective gas stove Saturday.

Benton township firemen also put out a grass fire Saturday at the residence of Russell Babcock, 1941 Britain avenue.
